- Best TA I could ask for in a math course. Really engaged with the class with his own personal flair, which made it even more interesting. May have a bit of difficulty in explaining some topics, but still does it well to the best of his abilities. 10/10 would recommend to others
- His discussions were fun and engaging, and he really cares about his students!
- I think Khang is a very kind-hearted and intelligent individual! He was very supportive of the section and put a lot of effort into his work. However, there were times where his explanations left me a little confused (like when he would use metaphors/analogies to describe certain topics) but overall I think he is a decent TA. I think one major thing that Khang struggles with is the quietness of his voice. It was very difficult to hear what he was saying a lot of the time because he speaks in a very low and mumbly tone, which hindered my capability to understand the material at times-- but this can easily be fixed with a microphone! I enjoyed the personality Khang put into his slides (memes and ending poems) and found it enjoyable to be in his presence. Unfortunately, I was unable to attend a few sections because of family issues and the timing of the class however I felt like the sections that I did attend helped me understand the difficult material a little better. Also, I really liked how he would work out the problems in real-time don't the chalkboard because it helped me understand how to solve things better (I had immense difficulty learning from the teaching style of Denise Rava but I was able to have a clearer view on a few things when seeing them worked out).

Thank you Khang for everything you do! Thank you for being so kind and supportive of your section! I appreciate you and all of the efforts you put into your sections, despite all of your grad homework and parties you would attend! It was nice being able to get insight into you and your personality! I wish you the best in life and hope for nothing but success to head your way! Rooting for you, marauder alumni! :D

- Khang is the best TA that I have had while at UCSD. Granted, I am a second year so I have not had that many. Regardless, he was super helpful and always cleared things up for me. His explanations really stuck with me, especially when it came to taking midterms.

- Khang was an excellent IA overall; the IA put a lot of effort into preparing presentations.
- Really cared about the class and was very understanding when the majority of the section was missing due to midterms and made the class enjoyable. Provided clear notes that summarized what we were learning in lecture and made the discussion exciting to attend.
- Thank you for the food and emotional support
